

Air Plant Care

Tillandsia in the home or office must receive enough bright light (filtered light not direct sun light) and moisture for a healthy plant. In place of natural light, a broad spectrum fluorescent light is recommended. Ideal watering schedule is one to two times a week. You can water them by using a spray bottle or by dunking them in a pan of water.

Air plants thrive in outdoor environments for instance; hanging from under a tree canopy, placed in a covered screened patio, the Tillandsia along with natural bright filtered sunlight, provide just the right environment air plants love. Watering once a week for humid environments, twice weekly for the dryer climates. Dehydration will occur when the plant's foliage begins to curl. Remedy, soak plants in water up to 15 minutes.
